Sabrina Is Chosen To Participate In CMJ's "Music Discovery Network"

The CMJ Network and partner Savage Beast Technology have chosen Sabrina to be 1 of 50 artists to launch the "Music Directory Network." According to CMJ and Savage Beast the directory will "introduce music lovers to undiscovered and emerging music that fits their taste and enable new artists to find their audience through premier retailers such as Tower Records. The Music Discovery Network integrates emerging and established artists through a powerful music navigation and discovery system developed by Savage Beast Technologies. Consumers searching the system can begin with a song, album, or artist they like and quickly find similar "under-the-radar" music. They can listen to song clips and buy the right CDs in a matter of minutes." To view the official press release click here.

Sabrina is very happy to be included in this project as it will allow her greater exposure on the web and in retail. She says, "I think this is an amazing technology that will only help all kinds of music by turning people on to things they may never have heard of. That's the premise behind the internet and the CMJ Network and I believe between them and Savage Beast's technology they will have nothing but success with it. I am proud to be able to participate in the promotion and launch of this service and I hope I am just one of the many more to participate."

As a participant in the program, professional musicologists will analyze Sabrina's music across hundreds of parameters and characteristics for enrollment in Savage Beast's Music Genome Project™. The music will be available and promoted at some of the leading music sites in the world, and through the Music Genome Project™, it will be targeted to consumers whose musical taste is best suited to her sound.

Sabrina and her music will be included as part of the Music Discovery Network's demo launch at this years CMJ Music Marathon convention, September 13-16 in New York City. We will keep you informed of when the Network will be officially launched.

Her music combines gothic imagery with pop hooks on a background that is pure rock. To look at Sabrina one would see long black hair, eyes of deep blue, and skin the palest of alabaster. To hear Sabrina's strong and emotional vocals would have you to believe Chrissie Hynde and David Bowie had a daughter and the voice of that child is Sabrina. ## SABRINA

Biography

Born into a family of entertainers in Brussels, Belgium, Sabrina inherited the abilities to be a major force in music. Her mother was a professional opera singer and her father a professional concert violinist who both performed around the globe. Sabrina moved to her mother's hometown of Los Angeles at an early age and was raised amid the sunny beaches and palm trees. In 1996 Sabrina moved to New York City with a desire to find a home more fitting to who she is, and she continues to reside in the area.

On Sabrina's debut CD entitled Euphoria she tackles the real world struggles of love, life, death and the pitfalls of society. And behind the dark expressive words about harsh realities, Sabrina's songs breathe a message of hope and strength to everyone that listens. Her music is a combination of dark gothic imagery with pop hooks on a background that is pure rock. To look at Sabrina one would see long black hair, eyes of deep blue, and skin the palest of alabaster. To hear Sabrina, would have you to believe Chrissie Hynde and David Bowie had a daughter, and the voice of that child is Sabrina.

Her lyrics are widely accepted as they are derived from the truths of every day life. Her melodic hooks are magnetic and the delivery of her voice is as strong and passionate as her lyrics. She, first and foremost, has always been a singer, but a few years back delved into writing. "Lyrically I felt there was something I wanted to say. I love to write and I especially love when I feel I'm making a difference. When someone tells me that one of my songs actually helped them through a problem, or that they sent it to a friend to help them out, makes everything worthwhile."

Sabrina says she particularly enjoys the collaboration process of writing. "Some of the first songs that I've done were with my friend from Los Angeles, writer/musician Russell Scott. In New York my manager put me to work with producer/writer/musician Spyro Karagiannis, and to promote the ability to collaborate further; he introduced me to writer/musician Keith Pires. Everyone brings something different to the table, and I like to be the string that binds the songs together and makes them work."

Some of the artists who influence Sabrina include David Bowie, Marianne Faithfull, Led Zeppelin, the Cure, Korn, Smashing Pumpkins and Tori Amos. "I love these artists, amongst others, because I respect their ability to take chances and be unique. I like trendsetters, people who are not afraid to take a style and twist it or add something new to the mix."

In the world of sugary-coated teen pop and rap infused rock, Sabrina's Euphoria tells stories of life with melodies on pop rock structures. Be prepared for Sabrina to be the female voice that rises out of the current rock scene as she blends her hypnotic vocal style and emotive stories on existing modern sounds. She's different, yet familiar and accessible.
